Which American president holds the biggest responsibility for the genocide of the native Americans?

Andrew Jackson takes the cake. The Removal Act was his doing. This was a watershed for the institutionalized racism that has defined so much of this country's culture. If you analyze all of the things the Cherokee had done to adapt to the settler culture there really is nothing anyone could have possibly done to more deserve inclusion. It was, all told, a splendid effort. My favorite feat was the invention of the completely phonetic Cherokee alphabet. It was so well done an old man could be taught to read and write in the Cherokee langage in a few weeks. Literacy skyrocketed. When Jackson nonetheless pushed through the act it heralded that sheer greed and racist disregard for non-white humanity was to be the American way.
The Five Civilized Tribes were sent on their Trail of Tears to vastly inferior lands to the west, and the moral compass of the nation went South

In office March 4, 1829 – March 4, 1837

Andrew Jackson, the seventh U.S. president, was a slave owner and slave trader who demonstrated a lifelong passion for the legal ownership and exploitation of enslaved black Americans. Jackson owned three plantations in total, one of which was known as the Hermitage, which had an enslaved population of 150 people. The Indian Removal Act of 1830 was signed into law on May 28, 1830, by United States president Andrew Jackson. The law, as described by Congress, provided "for an exchange of lands with the Indians residing in any of the states or territories, and for their removal west of the river Mississippi". During the presidency of Jackson (1829–1837) and his successor Martin Van Buren (1837–1841), more than 60,000 American Indians from at least 18 tribes were forced to move west of the Mississippi River where they were allocated new lands.

It is impossible to provide an exact number of Native American deaths during Andrew Jackson's presidency, as no comprehensive records were kept. However, tens of thousands of Native Americans died during the forced removals that occurred under his administration. The Indian Removal Act of 1830, signed by Jackson, led to the relocation of over 60,000 people from at least 18 tribes, and the process was accompanied by immense hardship, including violence, disease, and starvation, which resulted in a significant death toll.

Forced removal: During Jackson's presidency (1829–1837), a policy of forced removal resulted in over 60,000 Native Americans being moved west of the Mississippi River.

Disease and hardship: The journey was arduous, leading to a high death rate from disease, starvation, and exhaustion, though no precise figures are available.

Significant death toll: While the exact number is unknown, the death toll is considered to be in the tens of thousands, particularly during the removal of the "Five Civilized Tribes" from their ancestral lands in the Southeast.

Temperament

Jackson had a reputation for being short-tempered and violent, which terrified his opponents. He was able to use his temper strategically to accomplish what he wanted. He could keep it in check when necessary: his behavior was friendly and urbane when he went to Washington as senator during the campaign leading up to the 1824 election. According to Van Buren, he remained calm in times of difficulty and made his decisions deliberatively.

He had the tendency to take things personally. If someone crossed him, he would often become obsessed with crushing them. For example, on the last day of his presidency, Jackson declared he had only two regrets: that he had not shot Henry Clay or hanged John C. Calhoun. He also had a strong sense of loyalty. He considered threats to his friends as threats to himself, but he demanded unquestioning loyalty in return.

Chalk and Jonassohn assert that the deportation of the Cherokee tribe along the Trail of Tears would almost certainly be considered an act of genocide today.]

The Indian Removal Act of 1830 led to the exodus. About 17,000 Cherokees, along with approximately 2,000 Cherokee-owned black slaves, were removed from their homes. 8,000 Cherokee died, about half the total population.

The Indian Removal Act of 1830 led to the exodus. About 17,000 Cherokees, along with approximately 2,000 Cherokee-owned black slaves, were removed from their homes. Historians such as David Stannard and Barbara Mann have noted that the army deliberately routed the march of the Cherokee to pass through areas of a known cholera epidemic, such as Vicksburg, Mississippi.

The internment of Japanese Americans in the United States during World War II was the forced relocation and incarceration in concentration camps in the western interior of the country of about 120,000 people of Japanese ancestry, most of whom lived on the Pacific Coast. Sixty-two percent of the internees were United States citizens. These actions were ordered by President Franklin D. Roosevelt shortly after Imperial Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor

People who want to become dictators follow a strategy. Create or lie that there is an acute crisis that the person has a proposal to solve quickly. Adolf Hitler had the Reichstag building in Berlin burned down and then had reason to enact new laws that were enough to let Hitler become dictator. Donald Trump makes up that immigrants are a problem. But they contribute 0.3% to a higher GDP in the USA and that is enough to pay the salaries of about 40,000 teachers and to teach a lot of students. Furthermore, Trump has made up that there is an acute crisis with violence in certain cities. But the USA's high death toll from murder is completely linked to private individuals owning 400 million weapons out of the world's 1,000 million. A full 40% of the world's weapons even though the population is only a few percent of the entire population of the Earth. The USA is also the nation that imprisons the most of its citizens. It will probably be even higher than many countries in terms of deported people. The USA is now not considered a pure Democracy. Trump wants to become a Dictator in the USA, but the Constitution is written to prevent this and therefore Trump breaks a number of laws to see how far he can push his desire.

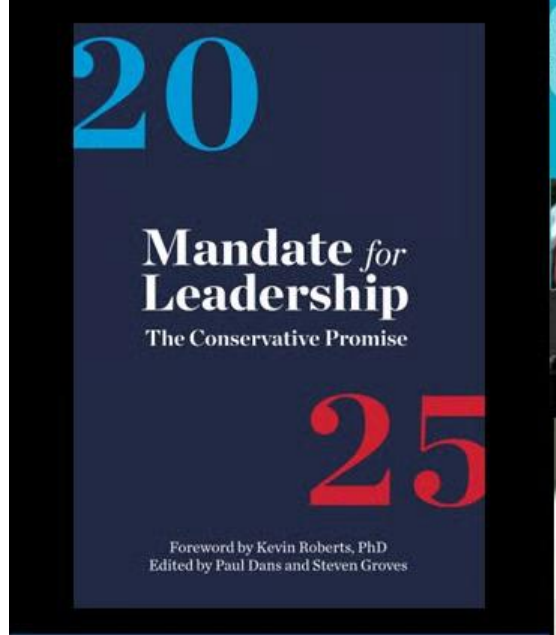
Project 2025's supporters say it will dismantle a government bureaucracy that is, they believe, unaccountable and biased toward liberalism. Its critics have called it authoritarian, Christian nationalist, and autocratic.

Legal experts say it would undermine the rule of law, the separation of powers, the separation of church and state, and civil liberties. Some critics have suggested Project 2025 is based on personal vengeance, or that its proposals for national conservatism are merely an "attempt to intellectually retrofit a rationale for Trumpism".

Compared to previous Republican agendas, Project 2025 contains more elements of culture war and advocates for wider implementation of policy across the federal government. While some proposals might require the support of Republicans in Congress or favorable rulings from the Supreme Court, much relies on executive authority.



The project recommends the arrest, detention, and mass deportation of illegal immigrants, and deploying the U.S. Armed Forces for domestic law enforcement and removing legal protections against anti-LGBT discrimination. criminalizing those who send and receive abortion and birth control medications and eliminating coverage of emergency contraception.

Every individual has the right to make informed decisions about their own body and health, including the right to decide whether or when to become pregnant. Abortion is part of sexual and reproductive health and rights (SRHR) and is a human right. It is only when women, who make up about half of the world's population, have autonomy over their bodies that we can achieve gender equality and equitable and sustainable development in the world. Developments are generally moving forward despite the setbacks. Reports show that abortion is fully or partially legal in almost half of the 147 UN member states. This means that it is legal in an increasing number of countries. A step in the right direction.

900 000 died and civilians and soldiers in American detention camps in Europe

American democide during the World War II. After an intensive study of American documents and interviews with survivors and perpetrators, the Canadian writer and former publisher James Bacque concluded that just before and after the end of the war German POWs and civilians in American detention camps in Europe died from hunger, exposure, and disease causing conditions as bad as the worse of gulag, and for which General Eisenhower was directly responsible. Bacque's figures are stunning: "undoubtedly . . . over 800,000, almost certainly over 900,000, and quite likely over a million died.

During World War II the United States likely murdered from 246,000 to 978,000 non-Americans, most likely 378,000.
